Kenya Cultural Night 1999, Celebrated Tonight

For the second time in three years, there will be a celebration, Kenyan Cultural Night at St. Lawrence. The event is part of the International House's country night series, a commendable effort towards recognizing and celebrating diversity on campus. After Kenya Night '99, other possible country nights planned for the rest of the year are Indian Night, Japanese Night, Russian Night and Bulgarian Night.

Tonight's Kenya Night '99 festivities are scheduled to begin at 6:00 p.m. in the Dean Eaton Formal Lounge. According to one of the key organizers, junior Ruphence Wakulele, the evening will feature a slide show and discussion about Kenya, followed by dinner and music. The menu will be of traditional Kenyan delicacies such as chapatis, samosas, ugali, mandazi and much more. The highlight of the evening will be a contemporary dance routine choreographed by sophomores Kwakwe Kivutha and Rahab Mwangi. Drawing on the success of the last Kenya night on campus, tonight's program will also have an informal dance workshop and afro-disco session.

Sponsors of Kenya Night '99 include The Office of Residence Life, I-House and the Substance Free House. The suggested dress code is African theme if possible, otherwise plain informal. All members of the university community are welcome to attend.
