

Gradual Progress

A tree on a mountain develops slowly according to the law of its being and consequently stands firmly rooted.

Within is tranquillity
Without is penetration
Gentleness that adapts

perseverance alone prevents slow progress from dwindling to nothing growth proceeds gradually
No sudden influence or sudden awakening is of lasting effect.

4/25/80

Don't let anyone tell you that 13 isn't an unlucky number. The journey from our last issue to this one (no. 14) has been long and difficult. The idea to subtitle the present issue of Rootdrinker DEMISE & SURVIVAL was firmly set even before the fire in Potsdam that destroyed the Racquette River Printshop and soaked the laid-out pages of Rootdrinker. Let's see, lost was about one hundred hours of work and a number of articles, dirty and faded beyond repair. What was left was taken to Rootdrinker's office in Canton, repasted and in some cases retyped and here we are.

Demise and Survival. Trying to stay alive in the 1980's is apparently going to be especially hard on publications such as ours. Word has been passed on to us that some small press efforts have already bitten the dust. My own desire to keep publishing a magazine that I believe is valuable to a regional community isn't enough. My hope is that you, the readers, will keep us alive, will support us and help us grow.

8/15/80 A. Casline

One-Year Subscription (4 issues) $5.00
In Canada - $6.00 (includes 1st class postage)
Supporting - $10.00

ROOTDRINKER
CANTON, N.Y. 13617

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Ruth Clark is the Mayor of Ft. Johnson, N.Y.
Mason Smith is the most widely published writer living in St. Lawrence County Artist Richard Hartigan is currently involved in building his house outside of Winthrop, N.Y.

Marc Weber is the author of the poem 'oikos'. He lives in Colorado Springs.

Tanya Glasser is a freelance photographer living in Potsdam, N.Y.. She doesn't do windows.

John Applegath is Director of the Human Economy Center in Amherst, MA.

The N.Y.S. Coalition for Local Self-Reliance has begun publishing a newsletter of events and happenings through-out N.Y.S.. Called FOUNDATION STONES, the publication comes out every two months. Rootdrinker subscribers will soon receive a sample copy in the mail. I urge you to join this organization ($10./year) and support their activities. Write them and send a dollar for a sample copy. To: The N.Y.S. Coalition for Local Self-Reliance, P.O. Box 6222, Syr., N.Y. 13217

CREDITS

photos	cover, p. 3, p. 4, p. 5 p. 19(all), p.20(all)	Tanya Glasser Thomas Nevich
graphics	inside front cover p. 7, p. 8 p.12, p.13 inside back cover	Nancy Warner Richard Hartigan Anne DiNardi Guy Berard

CLASSIFIED ADS

Please print or type your order

RATE: 5 cents per word - Payment Must Accompany Order.

FOR SALE: 95 acres; 70 acres mature hard and soft woods, balance overgrown pasture and small fields, springs, rolling land, wild berries, grapes, apples, nuts, sugar house plus equipment maintained road. 10 Miles north of Potsdam. $25,000. Write Tom Fuller, 1121 Trumansburg Rd. Ithaca, N.Y. 14850

WANTED: Copy of EARLY HISTORY OF HOPKINTON by Sanford 1903. Edna Finn, Saranac Lake, New York.