

scaly garden, Spring Hollow, summer 1978

Late Summer 1978

No. 10

ON THE COVER...

A photo taken in the late 1800's shows the Indian River entering the North Country's Natural Bridge at Natural Bridge, New York. Long known about, but still partially unexplored, this geological formation has an interesting story (see article beginning on page 19).

Edited, Printed & Published in the United States of America. © ROOT-DRINKER (Unless Otherwise Noted). Vol. 3, No. 10, Late Summer, 1978. $1.00/copy retail. All rights reserved. Correspondence to contributors will be forwarded. Printed by Raquette River Print Shop, Potsdam, N.Y. The Damage Close to Us (Part II) is reprinted with permission from the Late Spring 1978 issue of Akwasasne Notes.

GRAPHICS

Richard Hartigan, pp. 13,14 (both), 15, 16 (both), & 31; Ann Jones, p. 39; Mike Lawrence, pp. 8,33, & 34; Betsy Menson, p. 18; Lucretia Romey, p. 2; Deborah Weeks, pp. 4 & 5.

PHOTOS

Alan Casline, pp. 3,19,20(bottom),22 & 35; Doug Jones, p. 40; Ron Nolland, pp. 11,12(both) & 17; Severance, p. 21.

CONTENTS

By	Page
Rootdrinker	4	Festival of North Country Folklife
T. Menkel	6	Save The River
Bill Pike	7	The Founding of Beanboro
Akwasasne Notes	9	The Damage Close to Us (Part II)
Ron Nolland	11	Impressions of a Conference on Organic Agriculture
Dr. John Todd	13	Essentials of a Native Agriculture
Carolyn Swart	18	Recipes
Alan Casline	19	Underground at Natural Bridge
Lewis E. Weeks, Jr.	23	An Improvised, Efficient, and Inexpensive Fireplace
Rootdrinker	35	An Interview with John Van de Water on Nuclear Power
Donald Purcell	38	Reflections on Witnessing the Demolition of a North Country Sandstone Public Place